Brave lads, you left your home and friends

To fight a battle that you did not cause,
To free the world for future lives of men.

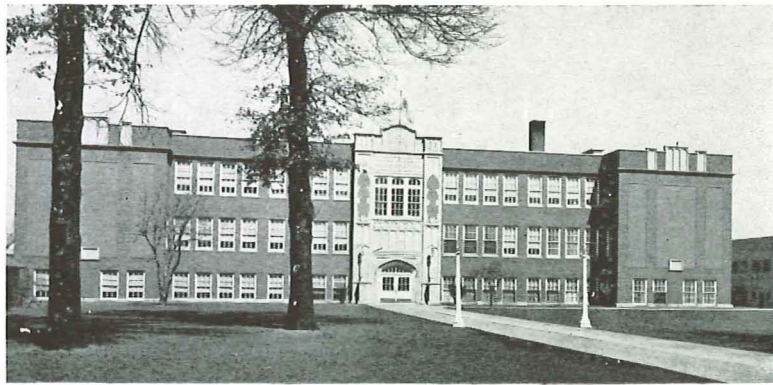

Brave lads, do you remember school

And plays and games and parties in the past,
Where fun and folly was the only rule?

Brave lads, this book is meant for you.

Your strength and courage and your faith in God
Are praised by boys and girls of Red and Blue.

—Lela Rose Hinman.

These buildings, symbolic of higher education, shall always remind us of happy hours spent in the pursuit of knowledge and in the formation of friendships. Old Glory, flying high above the entrance, symbolizes that freedom so dear to the hearts of the boys and girls of this United States—the freedom that is being protected by the boys to whom this book is dedicated.

Any Senior should be proud to be a member of the Class of 1943. This class has proved to be capable leaders in Linton-Stockton High School through a trying year of war effort. The entire school personnel, including teachers and pupils, has shown remarkable ability to develop an integrate program toward the war effort with donations to Red Cross, Community Chest Fund, Tuberculosis Association, as well as collecting tons of scrap metal and purchasing approximately $5,000.00 worth of war stamps and bonds. Physical fitness and refresher mathematic programs have been added tasks, but cheerfully accepted by our patriotic Juniors and Seniors.

Sincere compliments are certainly in order for the Class of 1943

—Jere O. Goodman.

The Senior Class of 1943 wishes to express its appreciation to the members of the School Board—these men who have made possible the many improvements in our school and its surroundings.

To Mr. Goodman, our Superintendent-Principal, for his numerous efforts and accomplishments in procuring for the students a better understanding between the pupils and their advisors, and for his work in sponsoring our class, we are especially grateful.

We wish to express our gratitude to our faculty for the advice and guidance they have given us toward our future success. Our most sincere gratification goes to Miss Phillips who has worked so constantly to help make possible this annual.

—The Senior Class.

In 1939 approximately 173 "greenies" advanced into the institution of higher education. Having been fortunate enough to climb eight steps of the ladder to success, they were progressing toward the final rungs.

As the advancement proceeded, several wayfarers slipped on a step or tripped leisurely up—not realizing they were halting their journey.

Meantime, from one step to the other, dreams of the Junior-Senior Prom and graduation were forming in the minds of these travelers. This inspired them to advance more rapidly.

Finally, the twelfth step appeared in the clouds of success and many eager hands strove to attain a steady grip. As this step was achieved by those worthy ones, they were given their deserved diplomas, qualifying them to advance up the ladder to their goal of success. Many will attain this goal by joining the armed forces and helping to make it possible for America to stand forever as "the land of the free and the home of the brave." Others will succeed in vocations on the home front.

CLASS PROPHECY

August 25, 1963
Denver, Colo.
4321 Shady Lane

Dear Miss Phillips:

I have just returned from a tour of the United States with the Never-Hitch Club and I thought I would write to tell you about all the '43's I saw.

Our club is now composed of Betty Patrick, O'Donnell Strahle, Kenny Coleman, Rosalie Francis, Betty Roach, Lillie Cunningham, and myself. Ernie Prudhomme, Wayne Brannon, and Patty Osha resigned from the club recently to plunge into the sea of matrimony.

Death Valley was one of the first places we visited. There we saw Eugene Dennis, who had a pick and shovel. He said he was looking for gold. In Maryville we saw six of our Marys. There were a lot of Linton kids in Maryville. In a place called the Gambill and Steele Pool Room, Jacquie Mead and her accompanist, Marjie Cornett, were performing, but were trying to transfer their contract to the Clark Coffee Cafe. The Metro-Magruder Opera Company had asked them to entertain at the annual Sophisticated Barn Dance held by "Pompadour" Pete Sarris, but they left with us for Hollywood.

In Hollywood we met Barbara Edwards, who is now the artist for the comic strip, Super-cat. At the Brown Derby we ate with Phyllis Talbott, famous book critic. She chose my latest story, "Careless Cattle" and the "Diary of Dola Imrie" as the outstanding books of the year. We went to see the movie "Gable Blevens and His Eleven Little Blevenses." He received an academy award for his outstanding performance from the great director of 20th Century Flops, Paul Geryak.

Nearby in Los Angeles we heard The Music Makers Swing Band: Maddox, Pope, Dean, and their soloist, Remy Voisin. The new members are Bette Anderson who plays a bazooka, Betty Callihan, who passes out the music, and Margaret Brogan, who takes up the music. Bob Thornton owns The First National Bank there. He employs anyone who promises to vote for him in the election for president this fall. So far he has a one-man bank.

On a ranch in Colorado we stopped for a while to see Junior Barnard, Frank Barlick, and Lester Laughlin. They had taken over a ghost town and fixed it up. You should have seen it. Two of the stores had familiar names, The Lavelda Bales Hay Company and The Emma Brannon Feed Store. On a street called Kline Avenue near the Coakley Pop Works stood The Borders Car Lot. Mr. and Mrs. Juanita Bredeweg Jackson lived south of the Borders'. Ruth Mathena and Margaret Murdock were running a poultry house, selling chickens of all flavors.

In Chicago we found a new store, The Tuttle 5 & 10, where Genevieve Bicknell and Mildred Tucker were selling candy, Betty O'Hern, Dixie Miller and Rita Marter were selling comic books, and Bob Foster was washing the windows. At the entrance Millie Browning was turning on the drinking fountain for tired shoppers. Across the street Verna Begerman was taking orders for Jack Walton's custom-made toothpicks, which come in sizes to fit all teeth. Jack is now a millionaire.

Our next stop was Terre Haute. We dropped into the Rogers Tea Shop and found Katy, who has made ginger tea the popular beverage of the Middle West since the downfall of coffee sales in 1943. Schmitt, Sisil & Smith are running a marriage agency on Wabash Avenue. Last month they received pleas from Earl

Mitchell, Paul Rusher, and Gene Walton. Bob Harrell owns the biggest flower shop in town, specializing in the "Donald" Rose and the "O'Hern" Iris.

By this time we were getting homesick for Linton so we started on our way. While passing through Sullivan, whom should we see but Thelma Smith, Lillian Graves, and Virginia Wilson, who own a dairy next to the "Barn." Eugene Cole and Junior O'Hern are now the esteemed proprietors of the "Barn," which Linton boys used to like so well. Remember how Linton and Sullivan were always rivals in everything, Miss Phillips?

The first person we saw when we arrived in Linton was Kathleen O'Connor. Imagine our surprise when she told us that she and Betty Jarmon operate a boat-club called the "Courtship" on a stripper pond east of town. She also told us that Betty Jane Wills, manages the Snack, a date society for lonesome hearts. It seems that both places have large crowds and threaten to put each other out of business.

We also ran into three "43" alumni still in alphabetical order—Harris, Heenan and Huber, Attorneyesses at law. They were handling the case of Bill Maddison, Jr., vs. Linton High School for dropping Billy III into the swimming pool during the contest to determine the most beautiful children of graduates. I suppose you have heard that the winners in the contest were "Herky" Jr., "Bruiser" Allen and "Woodchuck" Clayton. It is probably old news to you, too, that Jack White won the beauty medal in Virginia's Hall of Fame.

I'll bet you were glad to take a vacation this summer. Dear old Alma Mater has just finished her summer term for A. B. C. degrees. The course was very stiff and the three geniuses intelligent enough to pass the rigid examination were Billy and Willy McKinney and Franklin D. Gilmour. Franklin's dad is an employee of the Moody and Fitzpatrick Post-War Black Market Department Store. Zada Bobbitt is the telephone operator for students' private phones.

Elaine Wright had lunch with us at Klusmeier's Cafe. She is society editor for the Linton Daily Citizen and of course keeps up with the news. She told us that Prof. Marion Tislow had accepted the position of private tutor of Jonathan Lee Wade. Tragedy struck when Marion's rival, Bob Dunning, attained the exalted position as Dean of the Jay Bird Education Hall. She told us that Patsy Armpriester, Norma Pershing, and Norma Atto have moved to Dugger to save wear and tear on the pavement. Doris Harbin and Dixie Goodman have moved to Pleasantville for the same reason. Haag & Son are losing trade since the discovery of Leon's fountain of youth. She also said that Robert Lovelace and Carl Reintjes shine shoes in Jack McGriffin's Shoe Shine Shop. Margaret Rogers takes care of the silver which is taken in. Doris Reeve, registered nurse, is caring for a hamburger that was smothered in onions in Donie's Dive. Phyllis Lehman is happily married and is living in her old haunt, Bedford.

Well, I guess that accounts for all of our dear class of '43. The members of the Never-Hitch Club said they would like to see you. We surely had fun in Linton High School—even if we were a little mean sometimes.

Hope you can stop in Denver on your way home.

One of your ex-students,

Henpeck

The extra-curricular activities in Linton-Stockton High School are so varied that almost any student can find one which fits his particular desire.

For boys and girls who are primarily interested in developing high moral and social standards, there are the Hi-Y and Blue Tri clubs. Those who possess musical talent find Band and Glee Club most appealing. Scitamard is for those interested in dramatics. The athletically inclined girl chooses the Girls' Athletic Association. The Student Council is a representative group elected by the entire student body to promote activities for the betterment of the school as a whole.
